U.S. General Services Administration

William Sisk

Deputy Commissioner
Federal Acquisition Service

William Sisk was appointed deputy commissioner for the U.S. General Services Administration's Federal Acquisition Service on July 14, 2013 after serving in an acting capacity for eight months starting in November 2012.

From June 2011 until November 2012, Mr. Sisk was the assistant commissioner of General Supplies and Services where he led an organization of over 1,200 government employees and contractors with $23 billion in annual business volume. He was responsible for the acquisition of services and supplies used by federal agencies, the management of supply operations, the non-IT multiple award schedule program and the disposal of federal personal property.

Mr. Sisk, who started his career at GSA as an intern, has held many leadership positions within the organization. Prior to GSS, Mr. Sisk had been the FAS regional commissioner of the Southeast Sunbelt Region (Region 4) since 2007.

He has served in a variety of leadership positions in Region 4, including Public Buildings Service acting regional commissioner, assistant regional administrator, director of the Southeast Distribution Center and Regional Budget Officer.

Mr. Sisk graduated from the Citadel with a Bachelor of Science in business administration.
